ONLINE CLASS
Tuesday, May 5, 5:30 PM—6:30 PM

Rabbi Adam Chalom
of Kol Hadash Humanistic Congregation has moved his Adult Learning classes online and graciously offered to open them to guests.

Adult Education:
Haskalah, Reform and Reconstructionist Judaism
Tuesday, May 5, 5:30pm

The first substantial modern changes to traditional Jewish ritual and practice were the product of the Reform Movement, first in Germany and then in America. Reconstructionism preserved more religious tradition, but its philosophy of Judaism as a religious civilization prefigured that of Humanistic Judaism by thirty years. Rabbi Chalom will discuss what roots can be found in these religious Judaisms and where their paths diverge from Humanistic Judaism?

To register for this class, please email Jeremy at info@KolHadash.com and say that you heard about the class from Secular Humanist Jewish Circle in Tucson.